Types of Plagiarism

- Paraphrase
 - Summary: OK
 - Close paraphrase: not OK - considered “exact copy”
- Rule of thumb: 5+ words in a row, requires citation

Poor example: Close Paraphrase

- “Furthermore, concept nodes are linked by pathways, labeled, directional associations between concepts. This entire collection—nodes linked via pathways—is the network.”
- Ashcraft (2006) says that conceptual nodes are connected by pathways, which are labeled and directional. These give associations between concepts. The collection of linked nodes and pathways is the network.

Better Example of Paraphrase

- “Furthermore, concept nodes are linked by pathways, labeled, directional associations between concepts. This entire collection—nodes linked via pathways—is the network.”
- Ashcraft (2006) defines the network as a collection of “concept nodes” which are linked via connections. The connections have labels (i.e. names) and are directional.

Intention vs. Accidental?

Actions that might be seen as plagiarism

Buying, stealing, or borrowing a paper

Using the source too closely when paraphrasing

Hiring someone to write your paper

Building on someone's ideas without citation

Copying from another source without citing (on purpose or by accident)

Deliberate
Plagiarism

Possibly Accidental
Plagiarism
